Jaffa City, 7th Israel Coin-Medal

JAFFA, seventh in a series of coin-medals featuring historical cities in Israel, has recently been issued by the Israel Government Coins and Medals Corporation.

This coin-medal honors the city of Jaffa, which in the Hebrew is Yafo meaning "beautiful." With a recorded history of three thousand five hundred years. Jaffa is surrounded by several biblical and mythological legends.

The Greek myth concerns a sea-monster. The enchanting Andromeda, having offended the sea-god Poseidon, was chained to a rock that rises from the Mediterranean off the shore of Jaffa, and left to the mercy of a sea-monster. But the hero Perseus, mounted on his winged courser, killed the monster and rescued her.

In real history, there is hardly a conqueror of Judaea who overlooked this important harbor. Jaffa was taken, in succession, by Sennanherib, Alexander the Great, and Jonathan the Hasmonean. The Romans destroyed Jaffa in 68 C.E., two years before wrecking Jerusalem, and the Moslems captured it some six centuries later. The Crusaders prized it as a convenient haven and fortified the town, but their long struggle with the Saracens ended in 1268, and it fell to Sultan Baibars. Napoleon, thwarted at Acre in 1799, seized Jaffa, as a stronghold for his long campaign into Egypt.

The first Zionist pioneers entered the Promised Land through Jaffa, and, in 1909, they founded the new city of Tel Aviv on its northern dunes. After the re-establishment of the State of Israel, the two cities became one, and Tel Aviv — Yaffo is its name.

The obverse of the coin-medal, designed by Jean David, depicts the legendary whale taking the form of Jaffa's own promontory and carrying old-fashioned dwelling on its back. The tail is shaped into three Hebrew letters spelling Yafo. The word Jaffa is to the left.

Jean David, the artist, has often tackled the theme of Jaffa and Jonah and the whale. He has already won international recognition as an artist by his striking posters, which were awarded prizes at exhibitions in Tangiers, Milan, and Tokyo. His "Jonah and the Whale" is reproduced in the Encyclopedia Britannica.

The reverse side of the coin-medal is designed by Alex Beryne who has been the artist for many of the coin-medals in the historical cities series. In the center is a replica of a city-coin minted during the reign of the emperor Elagabalus, 217-222 C. E. Athena, helmeted, rests a shield on one foot and holds a lance in her right hand. Around her is an

The Hall of Fame For Great Americans has just released a medal honoring Thomas Alva Edison.

The Edison medal is the 29th of a series which is being struck to commemorate the immortals enshrined in the Hall of Fame located on the campus of New York University, New York City. On the obverse of the medal is portrayed an intent Edison in high relief supported by a stout limb of the Laurel of Honor which encompasses the dates of his life, 1847-1931. The reverse design symbolizes the spreading of light by an angel. The medals, struck by the Medallie Art Company, New York are being distributed by the Coin and Currency Institute, New York.

According to Granville W. Carter, the eminent American sculptor who designed this medal, the symbolic reverse was derived from two personal impressions; the first at the time of Edison's death in 1931, observing the three minute blackout of the lights over his home city of Augusta, Maine; and second, observing in Edison's library the marble statue of an angel holding aloft a bulb.

This is the second medal designed by Mr. Carter for the Hall of Fame, the other one being the James Fenimore Cooper medal. He has done considerable work for the Washington Cathedral, Washington, D.C. including the Tower Dedication Medal, a statue of Saint Augustine and two eight-foot-six Archangels of Michael and Gabriel for the South Transept, and thirty-one Celestary Bosses depicting the Passion of the Nicene Creed for the Nave.

Edison will always be remembered as the "father of the electric light" as he invented the first feasible incandescent electric lamp in 1879. Among his other inventions were the phonograph in 1877 and the motion-picture camera in 1891. Of the 1,097 patents issued to Edison during his life, 356 dealt with electric generation, distribution, and lighting.

During World War I Edison was appointed President of the Naval Consultant Board, forerunner of the Naval Research Laboratories. His association with this board is symbolized by a small anchor on an American Flag which appears at the bottom of the medal on the reverse side. To the left and right of this motif are test tubes and gears which are symbols of his extensive research and invention.

The Edison medals, like the other medals in the Hall of Fame series, are issued in bronze and silver. The bronze 1 1/4", bronze 3" and the silver 1 1/4", serially numbered on the edge. The silver medals are limited to an issue of only 7,500 pieces for each name. Part of the proceeds from the sale of medals goes to support the work of the Hall of Fame.

Abbey Gold Coins Minted

Dear Eliot,

Just finished reading Pace for this date and note that you say Sergio knew nothing about the proof sets until he got numerous inquiries. This is not true. He got just one inquiry! Let me run down my part in the deal very briefly:

Pace came out on Friday.

Saturday I got two calls from local collectors wanting to know the poop on Mexican proof sets as outlined in Pace.

Sunday I flew to Mexico City. Had gotten my ticket long before. Sunday evening I called on Sergio and told him about Pace article. (I wanted to buy 1000 or more proof sets myself). He was dumbfounded and got upset. Both of us were very puzzled about whole affair.

Monday. Monthly meeting of Sociedad Numismatica. No member knew anything about proof sets.

Tuesday or Wednesday . . . I cannot remember. I think Wed. Baron told me that you were in town and wanted to see me. Well I did not want to be seen within a mile of you as I knew there were some very angry people over the deal and I wanted no part of it. I did not even try to fly home. I went right to the airport and went to Acapulco. I fished until Sat. evening.

Sunday morning I flew to Mexico City and in between planes I bought a copy of the News and saw that you were being held in prison. I flew to Matamoros and over to Brownsville by taxi. I was scared that I still might be involved.

Sunday evening I got back to Edinburg and called your wife in Burleson. She was expecting you home at any minute and was not able to believe me when I told her you were in prison. I advised her to call the Embassy and try and get you out.

So you can see that I was the first person to talk to Sergio. Even before he ever went to his P.O. Box, and I was first person to report to your wife that you were in jail.

And both were more or less accidental. My trip to Mexico fell on that date and my return home was same day the newspapers announced your arrest. While I was in Acapulco I knew nothing.

I do know that Sunday morning in Mexico City I had on a suit and topcoat and was cold as hell and I really felt sorry for what I knew you must be going through.

With best regards,
Neil S. Utberg
Edinburg, Texas

Gentlemen:

I had a chance to see the Mexican trends quoted in your issue of Oct. 29 — and I was very happy to see them.

I am an investor/collector of Mexican coins, and I was extremely pleased to note that your trends were very realistic.

Keep up the good work.

Cordially,
Harold J. Goldbaum

Coin Investment Story Yesterday, Today

By Lee Martin

A recent coin convention was notable for its lack of roll and proof sets being offered by dealers. Everyone appeared to be interested in the type coins, foreign crowns, or U.S. silver dollars. A number of buyers actually went out of their way trying to locate uncirculated rolls only to find none were available. The herd instinct had assumed control of the seller and no one wished to be known as an "INVESTMENT COUNSELOR." This ridiculous situation is behind the review of our coin market.

In the past few years, there have been tremendous advances in circulation by most papers and hundreds of new dealers. The interest in coins has become universal and a large portion of collectors now own coins they purchased. But the signs have become obvious lately that all is not well in the kettle that dispenses the steam known as future profits. Like steam, the paper profits of many investors have evaporated. If this situation had been based on logic, it would be understandable but when the harbingers of doomsday are the catalysts responsible for the present situation.

The vast amount of growth in coin interest is obviously based on the profit motive or is started by the "something for nothing" belief. "A fortune in your pockets" and "you are throwing away money by not being aware of the coins that pass through your hands" are just two of the statements that have catapulted the hobby to its position of prestige. Both statements were and are true and in a number of instances real finds have occurred.

The harder to find dates fall into a classification of semi-key coins; therefore collectors who have tried to assemble a full date set usually wind up buying the dates they lack. From this need—an obviously important phase of coin merchandising—the coin market evolved.

Dealers began to put together uncirculated rolls of investment items and sold them to each other for stock. Soon certain rolls were found to be hard to locate and prices for these rolls began to escalate as demand exceeded supply. A lot of collectors saw the light and began to accumulate key and semi key coins. These individuals made quick profits and the word spread to others who were outside the sphere of coins but ready to climb aboard any bandwagon that showed a potential. The uncirculated rolls and proof coins had the most appeal to new investors because they did not have to master the art of grading. Ultimately the uncirculated rolls became a market unto themselves and every roll rose in price. It was at this point that

Panama Considers Issuing Gold Coins

PANAMA CITY—The Panamanian government is considering the issuance of $6 million in gold coins, presumably as collector's items.

They would be the first Panama gold coins ever minted.

The denominations would be $5, $10, $20 and $50, although the coins would have their value expressed in "urracas" or "balboas" rather than dollars.

It is expected that the gold coins will be recommended by a select three-member study committee. It could mean a profit to the government from the difference between face value and metal value of the coins plus whatever premium might be assessed over their face value.

QUOTES ASKED

Quotations have been requested from Great Britain and Switzerland for making the coins.

Concern has been expressed in some quarters that many Panamanians might withdraw their savings from banks to purchase the gold coins in hopes of making a profit, to convert them into jewelry or to obtain them as an indication of national pride.

EFFECT SIGNIFICANT

For that reason, the local effect of offering the gold coins for sale is significant.

One committee member said he would definitely recommend minting the coins if they could be sold outside Panama and not disturb the financial situation here.

The committee also is studying the possibility of reducing the silver content of Panamanian coins as has been done here.

The national assembly has the sole authority to act on the silver content, however, and the committee would only make a recommendation.

One committee member is known to favor maintaining the present percentage of silver in Panama coins because it would increase the demand for them among coin collectors.

New Zealand Sleeper

By Maurice M. Gould

From time to time, I will mention individual coins or numismatic items in this column. I will give you their background and potential and possibly you may get some worthwhile information from this.

This week I would like to mention a New Zealand coin, the 1963 two shilling or florin.

This piece had the very small mintage of 100,000 and many were used in sets which were shipped to dealers and collectors all over the world. It is estimated there are less than 30,000 in circulation and if, of course, enough did get into circulation, it would make the uncirculated pieces more valuable.

With the change to decimal coinage not too far away for New Zealand, and naturally the melting of a tremendous number of the coins now in circulation, any of the key dates or scarcer items should have a substantial rise in price and be in demand.

New Zealand coins on the whole are in fairly small mintages and Australian and English coins circulate along with their own coinage. This country, along with Australia, has become extremely popular numismatically, and as more catalogs and new coin holders are issued for them, they will attract many new collectors.

This country has only had its own coinage since the early 1930's and this makes it more attractive to the foreign collector who does not have to worry about needing hundreds of coins or many rare dates to fill out his set.

The early years of coinage of New Zealand are very difficult to find in nice condition and my correspondent there writes me that their coins see heavy useage. As there were very few collectors there, a very small number of coins were put away in brand new condition.

ERROR COLLECTORS

I recently received a new magazine called COIN ODDITY, Volume 1, No. 1, December, 1965.

The 20 page booklet has a great deal of information on the specialized series, with a For Sale and Wanted and Trade section.

In one of the Error features in the magazine, with regard to the 1955 Double Die Shift Cent, their estimate of 1/2 million of these coins minted seems entirely off. Many astute students who looked into the matter thoroughly came up with figures between 30,000 and 35,000 and where the 1/2 million figures is arrived at, I just do not know. If there were this large number available, I doubt very much they would be bringing the prices that these coins command today.

In reading of various coin publications, I noticed that there are more write-ups and stories on these oddities and more letters to the editors regarding them.

These coins are becoming more and more acceptable to both the old and new collector in numismatics and I look for them to have more adherence over the years.

You can see from this that the opportunities for finding mint errors and freaks are unlimited and no doubt with the renewed interest, many more will be listed.

REPORT ON NUMISMATIC

Everything seems to be perking up again in coin collecting and dealing. One of the most encouraging signs was told to me by a friend of mine who wanted to liquidate some material.

This is unusual because when business is slow dealers tighten up and are very cautious in their buying.

Frenzied Activity of Past Absent in New Collectors

By Brad Mills

The frenzied activity of two years ago is conspicuously absent among many new collectors who now seem to be going through a settling period that may be the prelude to even greater collecting of really worthwhile coins. We seem to be in a reassessment climate, during which all numismatists will do well to review their hobby from both pleasure and profit motives.

Rumors, promotions and pressure angles are found in every business and hobby, and the novices always are most susceptible to purchases of low potential. Frequently, however, the beginner is luckier and smarter than we think, and he comes out on top with what seemed very poor purchases at the time. He sometimes recognizes opportunities that older collectors have overlooked.

The seasoned numismatist can easily become too conservative, and in doing so may shut himself off from logical trends that only collectors with real vision can accept. Typical of the aloof and simon-pure collector is the one who steadfastly refused to buy scarce rolls that plainly were of value as type coins. Such rolls now are desirable because even the single coins are in strong demand, but they were largely overlooked prior to 1955.

Other dealers report to me that their business has picked up, with an accent on U.S. Type coins and who steadfastly refused to buy scarce rolls that plainly were of value as type coins. Such rolls now are desirable because even the single coins are in strong demand, but they were largely overlooked prior to 1955.

The field of numismatics still offers distinct promise to any hobbyist who pursues it on an intelligent basis. No man walking along the street expects to find a hundred-dollar bill along the gutter. Likewise no coin collector should expect to find a nice 1909-SVDB cent while looking through a few rolls over the week-end. Look as much as you like, but coins have been so "stripped" that only those with nominal premiums will be the searcher's chief awards.

A frank discussion of numismatics as a hobby should neither lower nor unduly glorify it for the person who wishes to get his feet wet in a most thrilling undertaking. Coin collecting has been very profitable during the past 15 years for almost all who have acquired worthwhile issues. Nearly all coins are much higher than that Indian heads are again coming back into their own.

Coin clubs I have visited show a great deal of activity and except for certain material which is available in large quantities, it looks like a green light for the coin market is ahead. We may be some way from the boom of six months ago, but all signs are extremely encouraging.

they were in 1954, and for many reasons.

Selectivity and enthusiasm should continue to make numismatics a profitable and expanding hobby. The bunglesome accumulator may or may not luck out on large purchases of common coins. The exacting collector who buys such issues as have been recommended in this column should fare very well.

Quality will continue to outstrip quantity in true enhancement, and every serious collector should acquire coins he would be proud to display to his friends. In the long run they will prove the best investment as well. Yet every numismatist should pursue the course or courses that gives him greatest pleasure.

When coin catalogs and good numismatic magazines lose their appeal, the collector is in trouble and losing interest in his hobby. By bidding realistically at auctions for good material and keeping posted generally, the ardent collector is keeping the fires alive for continuation of a terrific hobby.

Ronny's Reckoning

By Ronny Runner

The first issue of silver coins was the 1792 issue of halfdimes. Although since that issue was not looked upon as a "regular" issue, it is considered that the issue beginning in October, 1794, to be the first issue.

Due to legal difficulties no gold or silver coins were issued in the year 1793. This was due to the high bond requirements for the assayer and the chief coiner. The Act of March 3, 1794 neatly cut the bond from $10,000.00 to only $1,000 for the assayer and $5,000 for the chief coiner.

Next it was found that the clumsy fineness for silver of 1485/1664 was very difficult to work with. In actuality, this was the result of congressmen trying to duplicate the amount of silver in the Spanish Dollar on a different weight basis. Thus the officials adopted a fineness of 1467.6/1664. This made the coins 9/10 and easily worked with. Instead of presenting this to Congress they went ahead with the coinage, and presented it as an accomplished fact.

The Congressional Committee which investigated the mint in the winter of 1794, recommended that the illegal standard that was being used be adopted. This resolution was ignored. Undaunted by the law the mint simply went on making the coins on the illegal standard. This practice did not stop until Elias Boudinot became Mint Director in October, 1795. A technicality of the law enabled the mint to illegally raise the silver content. The 1792 law was death to a mint officer that debased the coins more than one part in one hundred fourth-four parts; nothing was in the law about those who enriched the silver coinage.

The first deposits of silver were made in 1794. The Bank of Maryland and making the first deposit. The first bullion used to strike coins was deposited by Mint Director Rittenhouse. Mr. Rittenhouse received every single Dollar struck in the first coinage of October 15, 1794, when 1758 Dollars were struck.

There were three engravers during that year. First was Robert Scott, the regular engraver. He had two assistants: Frederick

Readers Voice

Dear Mr. Brown,

I am writing you as the Editor of a major numismatic publication to seek your cooperation and that of your advertising department in preventing the spread of misinformation concerning metal tokens now being used in a number of Nevada gambling casinos.

Our attention has been directed to advertisements in some numismatic publications which describe the tokens in words such as these: "Used As And Redeemable For United States Dollars."

This is an inaccurate statement inasmuch as Federal law prohibits the use of metal tokens as money. Additionally, Nevada State Law, as implemented by Regulation 12, permits casinos to redeem their own tokens only from their own patrons, Riche, who served for 18 days in May and June, 1794, and John Smith Gardner, who began on November 19, 1794, as the assistant Engraver. Scot was almost certainly responsible for the silver coinage dies.

Our country has a fine history and by the study of numismatics we learn more and more about our great land. There is still much to learn. We must all try to profit by not only the failures of the past but also by the many successes.

many respects from the stock market but when supply and sellers are plentiful, prices plummet and this little snowball picked up speed. At no time did the drop become a run-away toboggan but the continual loss in profits expanded the fear of investors and like any device motivated by fear, the market for modern coins became one where reason had been temporarily abandoned. (The columnists have now reaped their reward and a sour one it is.) . . .

Circulation, figures, once so proudly printed by papers are generally placed in an inconspicuous place. Once heavy issues are now much more compact and belt tightening in general has become the fashion. The cliché that the chicken has come home to roost has never been more applicable. HOWEVER lets really look at today's market!

Never in the history of our silver coins has there been such a change in content. Publicity, adverse and favorable has made the general public coin conscious. (Recently before beginning a coin discussion for a service club I asked how many collected coins and this representative group raised hands that showed about 80 percent were involved.) The present day silver coins will all disappear within a year if present trends continue. Common date silver coins will not be available unless purchased and key dates will be treasures. Jewelry companies have begun making novelties of every description and some tie-tacks are being offered for 100 times face value. The half dollars have already evaporated from the scene and quarters and dimes are now being hoarded by the general public.

Every denomination has its specialists and those who hold the Lincoln cent and the Jefferson nickel have been hard hit by the silver publicity. They should take solace in the thought offered by many experts that those series are continuing ones and basic to any beginning collector.

except under carefully specified circumstances.

I am enclosing a copy of this Regulation for your information and use as you see fit. The purpose of the Regulation is to augment Federal law designed to keep metal tokens out of general circulation as money and to avoid deceiving the public.

Incidentally, the so-called dollar tokens in use are generally larger or smaller rather than being identical in size to silver dollars as some advertisements indicated.

You may feel free to show this letter and the Regulation to any of your advertisers to whom copy changes are suggested.

Thank you for any assistance you may provide. If we may be of help in the future please contact me.

Sincerely,

FOREIGN COINS

Have you noticed how many dealers who formerly were strictly U.S. merchants have now taken in a line of foreign coins?

Some of them run two advertisements, one of them for their foreign material and the other for the U.S. and Canadian.

From the mail I receive from all parts of the world, the world coin market is growing steadily and at one time, where most coins were coming from foreign countries to the United States, some coins are now being shipped to foreign countries where they command higher prices than we can obtain for them here.

As the new specialized books on individual countries are issued, they attract more and more collectors to the scene and there are signs of a rapid growth in this field during the next five years.

The Great Western Dealers Exchange

Special PACE Report

by Lee Martin

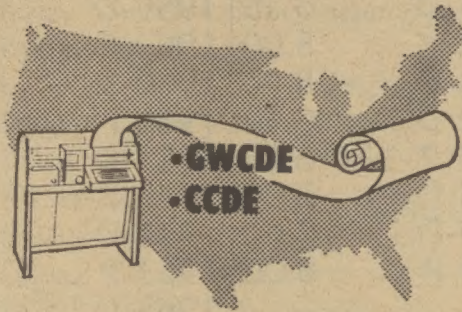

From a gleam in the eye to a colossus among teletape circuits in 16 months time indicates something more than luck and ability to guess about the future.

The man responsible for the surge to the forefront of G. W. D. E. is a serious minded aggressive individual, known to his friends as B. R. (full name Bert R. Slocum). The organization required to complete a nationwide exchange would make a story in itself but the magnet that attracted the finest dealers in the nation is worthy of close scrutiny.

Teletape associations are the dealer groups that bind together the abilities to buy coins in one part of the country and sell in another area within moments. The deals offered and usually consummated may run as high as two or three million dollars worth of coins in one day. (Not long ago, a single offering exceeded 2 million dollars).

About 2 years ago, the wealthier dealers were the only ones able to afford the machines that transmitted the buy and sell offers. As competition began to enter the scene between circuit owners, the requirements for membership were lessened and in certain instances anyone with the deposit was allowed to join the ranks in some groups. Most of these circuits are now defunct and the lack of controls exercised in selection must be one of the prime reasons for their failure. The losses among dealers by skip and run speculators caused many a second glance at the entire tape operation.

It was at this point that B. R. realized how vital it was for any entrant to an exchange to be closely checked for credit, paying habits and most important how his word was kept. The Great Western Coin Dealer's Exchange found the going rough and the competition keen during its first few days when the beginning steps were ridiculed for being too idealistic and unreal.

Certainly, one basic implementation helped to separate the GWCDE from those circuits that preceded it. The circuit was membership run and every area elected their own governors whose duty was to handle complaints and investigate prospective members. The screening has been close and a large number of would be circuit members have not been accepted but those who made the grade form one of the largest associations of ethical dealers ever assembled. The GWCDE has been an example of democracy at its best and credit goes to the constant vigilance of the responsible board members who pride themselves on their organization and who intend to keep it as perfect as humanly possible.

Visitors to the exchange are constantly amazed at the large map that indicates the number of members. A heavy concentration of pins in Florida is more than balanced by the overall picture of coin stores in California. (More California dealers are on the exchange than in any other circuit). empire is being forged is not known at this time but certainly no other organization boasts members in Washington and Oregon and it is doubtful if any exchange can muster so many great numismatic names. Although dealers in the midwest are still being accepted, the GWCDE appears to be rapidly reaching a point where certain areas will be considered closed. This will assure peak efficiency of operation.

A unique offshoot of the main organization is the pony circuit offered to Southern California dealers. This enterprise differs in the operational process primarily in its cost and in the type of coverage offered. While members of the group will not have direct access to other nationwide offerings they will be aware of all transactions and can make their own contacts for specific deals. All, of course, are in direct touch with those in the California range. The rental fee of $65.00 per month is obviously one of the best buys available anywhere in the competitive land known as teletapetry.

One pertinent question asked during any interview received some intriguing answers. The question was simply, "What does the future hold?" The multifaceted response covered all phases of interest from collector to dealer and in the well known capsule report indicates deep study of the investment phase by B.R.

Basing his predictions on future events by scrutinizing the mirror of the past, Slocum stated that outside governmental influences should be important factors. By cooperating with the Treasury and not allowing any sales of the clad coins until the shortage has abated and by waiting patiently for the new mint to be completed, the years of 1966 and 1967 should be banner ones. Tentative promises of proof sets, mint sets and perhaps coinage design changes appear to be in the offing if, and this is a big IF, the coin clan continues to work for the betterment of a relationship with Treasury officials.

Maxine Reber demonstrates the circuit in one phase, the sending of tape from one section of the country to another.

B. R. Slocum lights one up during a rare moment of relaxation. Owner of the GWCDE, Slocum finds few times when he is not involved with directing the operation. Members know that he is as close as their phone for personal confabs.

The investors who have seen the drop in prices of present day coins and who have been disenchanted by scare mongers and periodicals that stress "buy the oldies," will find that their investments are now oldies in themselves and as such never appear on the scene again. Those who bought the proof coins in particular will be happy they are holding the only 90% silver proofs.

New forms of improvement will aid the dealer transactions and the GWCDE is already anticipating a speed up to 100 words per minute transmission. The present 75 words has long since obsoleted the systems maintaining only 60 words per minute interchanges.

Type coin dealers have found that they are among the foremost profit-makers and those holding the better grade coins are as enthusiastic as the avid sellers of fine foreign coins.

In summing up the story, B. R. stated that the largest circuit in the country has gotten to that point through service, (24 hour and 7 days a week), through its democratic principles and member elected governors and because of the loyalty of the members. Unlike a certain car rental unit that proclaims its going to improve because it is only 2nd. largest, the Great Western Coin Dealer's Exchange is

Coin Exchange Transactions

BU ROLL PRICES AS OF
WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1965

The BID and ASKED prices listed on this page were taken directly from the prices shown on the teletype, and represent wholesale prices at which coins were traded at or were offered at during the week of November 15th. Of course there are some items that had several different prices both bid and asked, and we have done our best to average these items so as to give our readers the best picture possible. We have tried to ignore ridiculous bids and offers to keep the prices true. For instance, a certain roll might be actively traded in at between $95.00 and $100.00 and we have noted many transactions around these figures. Naturally we will ignore a bid offer of $75.00 or a sell offer of $125.00 on this roll as these offers are not in line at all and would just confuse the picture.

REMEMBER, THESE ARE TRANSACTIONS BETWEEN DEALERS. RETAIL PRICES ARE HIGHER.

CASHDAN'S COIN COMMENTS

Holiday in Mexico

Part IV

By Eliot J. Cashdan

To get back to about the first week in May when the members of the Professional Coin Dealers Exchange tried to help secure my release. Mr. Pressman first flew to Fort Worth to consult with my Fort Worth attorney, Don Prager, and to see what arrangements could be made through my bank. It finally looked like with the money that was raised in Fort Worth together with the money that was donated by the PCDE members that it would be possible to send $44,000.00 in cash to Mexico City to bail me out.

COINCIDENCES

This story of mine is full of coincidences, and here is another one. At the very time that this was going on, my Mexican attorney was working diligently on our appeal, and had presented all of the necessary papers to the court. Just a few hours before Mr. Pressman arrived in Mexico City, my attorney had been to visit me and advised me that he had just had quite a conference with the judge, and that the judge had advised him that from the preliminary examination that he had made of our case, he didn't see how he could possibly find us guilty of fraud or attempt to defraud. My three companions who had been out on bond also came with my attorney to tell me the good news, and we were all quite convinced that it would all soon be over.

I questioned my attorney at length, and he assured me that there would be no problems at all and that he was 100% convinced that I would be free by the end of May at the latest. When Mr. Pressman arrived we had a long talk. He also talked to Raul Cardenas, my Mexican attorney, and it seemed to all of us at that time that it would be just a matter of a couple of weeks or so before I would be set free.

We therefore decided that it wasn't worth taking a chance on putting up the $44,000.00 in cash for just a couple of weeks, because we figured that once they got their hands on the money, we might not be able to get it back. I had been in jail about three and a half months by then, and I figured that I might as well spend a little more time there rather than risk so much money. So once again I thanked Mr. Pressman, and just sat down and began sweating it out. Time really did seem to stand still for the next few weeks, and my attorney and my friends kept me advised as often as they could to what was transpiring with our appeal.

AT LAST!

Finally, on Thursday morning, May 27th, my attorney and three companions visited me at the prison. I could tell from the expressions on their faces that something good had happened. They all hugged me and told me that the papers would be signed that same day putting an end to the whole mess for all of us, and that I would probably be out the following day, Friday. Naturally after over four months I was overjoyed, and I asked them to phone Fort Worth right way and tell everyone the good news. Well, the judge did sign the papers on May 27th, and everyone in the States know about it and was sure that I would be out in a day or so. As a matter of fact, I was sure of it myself this time, but again I did not reckon with the slow turning of the wheels of "justice" in Mexico.

It was necessary to have the release papers first okayed by no. 2 judge and this took about four days to do. Then my release papers had to be okayed by no. 1 judge, Gamboa, who did his best to give everyone the run-around again. He kept dodging the signing of the papers even though the maximum time limit for him to okay or reject was five days. As usual, the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City did nothing to help get me over this hurdle.

On Wednesday morning, June 9th, a United Press International reporter came to visit me. He was waiting since May 27th to take a picture of me being released from prison and couldn't understand what was taking so long. He asked me if I would mind if he would try to see Gamboa and get him to sign the papers. I sure didn't mind and I told him that anything that he could do would be greatly appreciated. When he reached the judge's office, he was told that the judge had just left on vacation. He raised quite a fuss with the judge's secretary, who acts as judge when the judge is gone. He stayed there until the necessary papers were signed. The papers reached the prison about 4 p.m. that afternoon, and I walked out of the prison gates at about 5 p.m. into the arms of two officers from the Mexican Immigration Service who arrested me because my tourist permit had expired while I was in jail. They were very nice to me, unlike the members of the Gestapo that had dealt with me originally. They took me to their headquarters and explained to me that they would probably have to intern me for four or five days because being that my tourist permit had expired, I was actually in the country illegally. I told them that all I wanted to do was get out of Mexico as soon as possible and that I certainly had no plans to stay there. I didn't want any permit, all I wanted was to be able to get on a plane bound for the U.S. The UPI reporter came with me to the immigration headquarters at my request as I was actually afraid that something might happen.

As I mentioned, this department was very nice and allowed me to make several phone calls. I called the U.S. Embassy, and I called my companions. This time the Embassy was able to do something, and by 9 p.m. that evening I was at the Hotel Plaza Vista Hermosa drinking several bloody Mary's and ordering a big steak.

I had an appointment at the Embassy for 10 a.m. the next morning, and they assured me that they would be able to arrange to get me out of the country that same day. To make sure that there would be no slip-ups, I made my plane reservations to leave at 3:30 p.m. The following morning I kept my appointment at the Embassy, filled out some papers — can't say what they were because I was still in a daze — and was told that the liaison man between the Embassy and the Mexican Immigration Service would deliver my permit to leave the country to me at my hotel at 1 p.m. Well, I went back to the hotel to sweat that out, and this was actually the first time since

I had been in Mexico that anything happened on time. At exactly 1 p.m. here came the man with the papers.

Another reporter was with me at the time, Mr. Larry Allen of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. He had been to visit me several times while I was in jail, and had always done his best to help me with anything that he could. He said that he would stay with me until I got on the plane to make sure that nothing else happened. Thank goodness nothing did happen, and at 3:30 p.m. I was on my way home.

This should have ended the story, but it didn't. In Mexico, unlike the U.S., it is possible to be tried several times for the same offense. Double jeopardy is quite common. Even though we were set free, and the charges against us were dropped, Gamboa and the prosecutor appealed the decision of the judge who freed us. Of course I was back home and I had no intention of returning to Mexico if the decision was reversed. The appeal was lost however, and we are still legally free.

NOT SETTLED YET

As far as I am concerned, things will not be settled until Gamboa releases the checks and money orders that have been in the possession of his court since last January. The U.S. Embassy has been trying to obtain these checks and money orders and also the U.S. Post Office Department has been working on the case. All that they are met with is typical stall tactics. Manana never seems to come though, and the checks are still there. It is entirely possible that they have all been destroyed, as there is no legal way that anyone in Mexico can cash them. One of the Postal Inspectors working out of the Fort Worth office, Mr. Ellis, who by the way was the same Inspector who visited me while I was in jail, informed me last week that up to that moment, Washington still refused to nullify the money orders sent to Mexico and issue new ones.

Many people have written to me personally, asking that I return their money to them. I am sure that after reading this story they will realize that I never saw their money, and that it was not sent to me in the first place. To the best of my knowledge, the only person who saw some of the checks besides the court was Sergio Torres Martinez, and he turned them over to the court.

Special Events

Conventions, auctions, fairs, club meetings, or any other events of interest in the numismatic world appear in this section every week.

Organization officers and chairmen are respectfully requested to write us about your events. FREE COPIES of PACE will be sent on request for distribution at your event.

After your event has taken place, please send us a report, with pictures if possible — for complete news coverage in PACE.

MIDWEST COIN ARAMA Coin Show has been planned for February 5 and 6, 1966, in Sedalia, Missouri, to be held at the Mall, Thompson Hills Shopping Center.

This show will be backed and advertised by the entire shopping center located in the heart of Missouri.

Many collectors are expected from nearby Whitman Air Force base.

Doore will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

There will be a free 1955-S dime given to the first 50 attending and a free 1955-S cent for the second 50 attending each day. For those who came later there will be Gift Certificates which they can redeem at their favorite Bourse table.

No long auctions to have you but a few 5 minute auctions of choice coins to entertain you.

Security will be offered for the entire show including Friday night for the "early birds." Show Chairman is Art Richards, P.O. Box 26, Sedalia, Missouri.

COIN SHOW SPEAKER Don Jensen, past president of the Iowa Numismatic Association was our speaker on Saturday evening. A new feature this year was the complete broadcast of Don's talk part in the ceremony. about the future of Numismatics and Numismatic.

We hope to have Don back in Clarione sometime this winter as guest speaker for those who were unable to attend the show.

N. Fjelstad, and new to us this year, Dave Dorfman, Paul Kirsch, Bill Bagwell and Bob Ott. We hope Danny is feeling better by now and will be with us next year.

Jim Judson, exhibits Chairman wishes to thank each and every exhibitor.

THANKS THANKS THANKS. The Clarion Collectors wish to thank the many companies for door prizes and the trade publications for magazines and newspapers. We doubt seriously that they really know how much their cooperation means to a small show such as ours. We hope that they derive some benefit from the display of their merchandise and the distribution of their publications. We Thank Them.
